“Working directly with manufacturers to develop new production processes inspires me to design innovative and forward thinking designs, in a simple, elegant style”.

Jessamy Kelly

Jessamy Kelly is a talented designer and artisan, her practice is based on the hand crafted sensitivity of glass making. In June 2001, Jessamy completed her Bachelor of Arts degree in Glass and Ceramics at the University of Sunderland and went on to study towards her Master of design degree at Edinburgh College of Art; which she completed In January 2002. This involved an Industrial placement at Edinburgh Crystal as a student glass designer and apprentice. The placement was in collaboration with Edinburgh College of Art, and went towards her Masters Degree in ‘Glass Product Design’. This opportunity gave her creative freedom to research and develop ideas within Edinburgh Crystal’s production facilities, allowing a creative and experimental approach within the reality of a commercial environment. She acquired the traditional techniques of glass cutting and engraving at Edinburgh Crystal and continues to use them in her work. Jessamy worked as an in-house glass designer until July 2006, when she decided to focus completely on her own studio work and design business; carrying on the traditional techniques of glassmaking in her own unique style.

Jessamy’s knowledge of industrial glass design and manufacture has established her as a specialist in the field. Her clients include companies such as Edinburgh Crystal and Kevin McCloud’s homeware brand ‘Place’. As a glass design consultant Jessamy utilises her specialist glass design skills and knowledge of manufacturing. Her clients benefit from her expertise in sampling, product development and supplier liaison. Jessamy works closely with her clients, to create bespoke pieces, appropriate to their specific requirements.
